The Clinton, Dubuque and North-western, an allied corporation, is now sur-veying a line northwest to some point on the Illinois Central, probably Farley or Dy-ersyllle, where the Chicago Great Western is reached. Description of the National Republican Headquarters.

SECURING NATURALIZATION PAPERS

Glimpses of Political Life in the Great Metropolis.

THE MOLINEUX CASE

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. NEW YORK, July 25, 1900. With the opening of national republican headquarters at No. 1 Madison avenue the campaign may be said to have formally begun. The headquarters are the most completely equipped and centrally located that the committee has occupied at any time in its existence. It will be the first time, too, that the state and national committees have been housed together in such convenient proximity, and the first time that the state and national banners have been combined in one standard-made necessary this time by the limitations of space. The 23d street side of the Metropolitan building does not give room enough for the proper display of two great battle flags. One would hide the other; so it has been decided that state and nation shall absorb each other, as it were, and fling defiance to the enemy with one set of halyards. The county committee's banner, now strung across 23d street, will remain where it is until the new banner is finished, which will be within a few days. The twenty-two rooms are so nearly in order that they are to all intents and purposes open. They are to all intents and purposes open. They are to be decorated throughout with the American flag in folds, festoons, rosettes and Maitese crosses. Room No. 308, facing on 23d street, is a large, square room, handsomely furnished in eak, and is one of the lightest and largest rooms in the building. It will be the headquarters of Chairman Hanna. No. 307, which adjoins it, is spacious and is to be used for committee meetings and whatever other purposes it may be needed for. he enemy with one set of halyards. The

The United States League of Building and Loan Associations convened in annual convention at the state house in Indianapolis yesterday.

Governor Mount and Mayor Taggart addressed the league at its opening session. After responses President Fitzmorris of Omaha made his address. He said in part:

"Directly and indirectly the United States league represents an economic For the accommodation of the newspaper representatives, local and foreign, and the response of the newspaper representatives, local and foreign, and the Omaha made his address. He said in part:

"Directly and indirectly the United States league represents an economic movement which has enrolled 1,500,000 people, share-holding members in 5,485 associations, with resources approximating $30,000,000.

"The work accomplished by building and ioan associations by and for their members appears all the more remarkable when account is taken of the obstacles overcome. The original system, as well as the true system of today, placed all members on an equality and made the good of all suphone service, by which the chairman may be kept in touch with the chiefs of the several departments.

Naturalizing Voters.

Persons entitled to become naturalized in order to vote at the presidential election this year must have their applications filed in the state courts before the end of the present week. Otherwise they can't vote in November. If they get out their first papers in the federal courts instead of in the state courts they have until August 6 to make application. In former years a person who was naturalized up to within thirty days of an election was enabled to vote. The democratic district leaders used to help the more in their districts who were entitled to democratic district leaders used to help the men in their districts who were entitled to vote by reason of being five years in the country to get their second papers. The republicans began to fear that the democrats were reaping an advantage from the thirty-day limit, and they set to work to put obstacles in the way of the man who wants to get out his citizenship papers. In the first place, the republican constitutional convention of 1844 raised the limit to ninety days, or three months. Then the republican legislature passed a law saying the applications for second papers must be lodged with the naturalization bureau in the supreme court fourteen days before they are passed upon. This practically compels a would-be citizen to apply for his second papers 105 days before election if he hopes to vote. No such rule as the last one applications the second papers to the second papers. to vote. No such rule as the last one ap-plies to the federal courts, and the applicant may file his application and be made a citizen upon the same day; in other words, he may make his application up to within ninety-one days of election and then vote for President. All new voters are anxious to cast their first vote in a presidential to cast their first vote in a presidential year, but thousands in this state will be debarred from doing so by the constitutional and legislative restrictions. It is a peculiar coincidence that nearly all foreigners whose sympathies are with the democratic party are naturalized in the state courts, and those who are inclined to be republicans are made citizens by the federal judges. Of course, it is also a coincidence that the republican legislature has made it a little more difficult to get naturalized in the state courts.

An employe of the naturalization bureau In the state court says:
"The difference in the number of people we will naturalize this year and the number naturalized in previous years is some-thing astonishing. Under the old system thing astonishing. Under the old system we naturalized about 10,000 persons in a presidential year. The old superior court alone used to naturalize about 8,000. This year we will make about 2,000 new citizens, and the immigration is not diminishing. People don't like to go to the trouble of coming down here so often. Take the average workingman. He is compelled to lose half a day, at least, to come down here to file his application. Then he must lose another half day to come down and be examined by the judge. Perhaps he is compelled to come two or three times more, and thing astonishing. pelled to come two or three times more, and besides he must bring a witness who is also perhaps a workingman, who must los also perhaps a workingman, who must lose time. The political leaders used to help the men out in the state courts, show them where to go and tell them how to get easy without losing unnecessary time. They don't do it now because no man knows how a new voter is going to cast his ballot 105 days before election."

Croker Against Wm. Astor Chanler. The seat now occupied in the House of Representatives by William Astor Chanler, traveler, author and statesman, will have a new tenant next session, according to the friends of Richard Croker. The Tammany boss is represented to be dissatisfied with Mr. Chanler's conduct in Congress and means to turn him down. Mr. Chanler, who is rich and independent, doesn't mind losing a trifling thing like a seat in Congress and the little salary of $5,000 a year that goes with it. But he is not willing to accept Croker's opinion as to the qualities a congressman should possess or expect. He is said to have told Croker so in very plain English at the Democratic Club a few days

English at the Democratic Club a few days ago. His friends quote him as saying to Croker:

"You appear to labor under the impression that you personally conferred a favor on me by assenting to my nomination for Congress, as well as securing my election. I think you are mistaken. It is my opinion that my own personality and record had quite as much to do with my election as your influence or that of Tammany Hall. Now, I do not care anything about a seat in Congress, and do not feel inclined to run, anyway."

Mr. Chanler's independent declaration, it is stated, was inspired by Croker's frank-

Mr. Chanler's independent declaration, it is stated, was inspired by Croker's frankness in calling his attention to some complaints from citizens in the fourteenth congressional district that Mr. Chanler ignored their demands. It is considered more probable by Mr. Chanler's friends that Croker resented Mr. Chanler's independence in voting concerning which Croker had decided opinions. Most Tammany congressmen, it is asserted, vote as Croker directs. Mr. Chanler doesn't. 'ammany men do not expect that Mr. Chanler will be renominated to make the race against Lemuel Eli Quigg, late president of the republican county committee, who will probably seek vindication again this autumn. Mr. Chanler's friends say he can be nominated, if he likes, either for Congress or lieutenant governor, on the democratic ticket. Half a dozen Tammany men are grooming themselves for the Congress nomination in the fourteenth district if Mr. Chanler retires. They admit that he has proved to be a good congressman and is the strongest candidate that could be named to run against Mr. Quigg. Mr. Chandler was elected over Mr. Quigg in 1898 by 6,395 votes. Two years before Mr. Quigg carried the district for the republicans by 9,312, so that Mr. Chanler changed 15,707 votes, most of which were cast as a personal tribute to him.

candidate of their choice than all the men folk put together. That women are a power in politics in the third district is recognized by the republican leaders in that section of Brooklyn, and their power was made especially manifest during Lieutenant Governor Woodruff's campaign. Mrs. Woodruff aided her husband materially in his canwass, as she has done much in adding to his popularity throughout the country. It is just such a campaign that the gallant colonel intends waging. In this he will have the assistance of his talented wife. The women folk with any idea of politics are crowding to her side. The first gun of this unique campaign was fired on Friday night by Col. Britton and his wife. It was in the form of a trolley party, to which all the republican workers in the third congressional district, together with their mothers, sisters, wives, aunts, cousins and sweethearts

The candidacy of Col. Britton for the republican congressional nomination from the third district is attracting considerable attention among military men, as it was he whose influence saved the $1,000,000 National Guard appropriation bill from defeat, and, according to his own statement, his candidacy was suggested to him as the best means of forwarding the National Guard reform measures of which he is the parent. He has invariably insisted that the National Guard should be under control of the various states in time of peace, but subject to the call of the President whenever occasion should require.

Dr. Wilson for gold and Congressman

Dr. Wilson for gold and Congressman Mitchell May of the sixth district for silver seem to be the only two representatives from Kings county who have the courage to say how they stand. The other three-Driggs, Clayton and Fitzgerald-are claimed to be muzzled by Willoughby street. They voted for sound currency in the House, but now appear to be willing to obey Willoughby street and to support Bryanism. Adolph Sanger, president of the Brooklyn Saengerbund, is after the democratic nomination in Wilson's district. Jacob Worth's boom for Congress is expanding every day. Register Howe and other prominent republicans are backing him.

Within thirty days his counsel had served notice of appeal, as provided by law, on the district attorney, and had on May 4 completed the proposed case on appeal and bill of exceptions and served a copy on the district attorney. He said no amendments had been received, and he thought the court ought to sign the papers and let the case go on up to the court of appeals.

Mr. Le Barbier, for the district attorney, explained that the papers served on that of-cial consisted of 4,626 typewritten pages, exclusive of the district attorney's opening address and the recorder's charge to the jury. He had only had time to examine 1,000 pages. He asked the court not to compel the district attorney to use undue haste. Mr. Battle said it was inflicting great hardship on Molineux to keep him cooped up in Sing Sing without ball, and he thought the district attorney had had quite enough time. Mr. Chamberlain, replying, welcomed the In 1757 and died in 1854, at the age of nine-ty-seven, having survived him fifty years. On the tomb the dates are cut, respectively, 1737 and 1834. It is said at the office of the Trinity Church corporation that the error in these dates was due to a blunder of the stonecutter, who, in repairing the tomb, deepened the lines. Reference to the church books showed that the inscription as originally carved on Eliza Hamilton's tomb gave the dates correctly, 1757 and 1854. The old-fashioned figure 3, which much resembles a 5, probably caused the confusion. The matter is to be attended to at once and the inscription corrected.

A Big Lump of Gold.

The officials at the United States assay office in Wall street are not pleased with a big lump of gold, valued at $135.275, which recently arrived, having been forwarded by the Bank of Montreal. The difficulty is that it is too big, and the officials say they have no way to melt the huge nugget. The hydraulic miners of British Columbia made the lump so large that Superintendent Machanist and interest of the states at the earliest possible moment a civil administration would be established. The government estible moment a system of self-government similar to that enjoyed by the other Britsmann and the interest of the same that the motion, which, he declared, meant that the war was wrong and their independence should be restored to them. sired to give the states at the earliest pos-sible moment-a system of self-government similar to that enjoyed by the other Brit-ish colonies. He believed the hope of a reaction at home was prolonging the war. Therefore, in the interests of the coun-try, he hoped it would be made clear that the government had substantially a united house and neonle behind it

The opposition did not spare Mr. Chamberlain. Liberal members sharply interrupted him and charged him with misquoting other speakers and reminded him that the whole history of South Africa the past seven years had furnished substantial grounds for him to be suspected in all his actions.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader in the house of commons, declared that Mr. Chamberlain had prostituted the occasion to the purpose of making an electioneering speech.

men cannot understand what induced the miners to make it so heavy, as it was inconvenient to handle, ship and weigh, and now comes the greatest difficulty. The weight of the lump-7,897 ounces—made the services of four men necessary to place the cone on the scales. Assay office employes freely said that this lump was "too much of a good thing" for a hot day in July.

The whirligig of time has brought about a renewed interest in croquet as an outdoor game, and many lawns of country homes display croquet wickets where formerly tennis nets have been stretched. It has been discovered that tennis is too violent a game for the majority of women, and when the exigencies of golf are too faing an electioneering speech.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury and government leader in the house, moved closure, which was carried—169 ayes to 100 nays. The motion on reduction of Mr. Chamberlain's salary was then lost—208 nays to 52 ayes Mr. Chamberland 208 nays to 52 ayes. CHARGES AGAINST COL. KIMBALL.

> A suit has been brought in New York city by the Philippines Company, which was organized about two years ago to carry government freight to Manila, against Col. Amos G. Kimball, deputy quartermaster general, U. S. A., stationed in that city. The damages are placed at $100,000. Col. Kimball is accused of conspiring with Gen. Edward C. O'Brien and Walter

E. Ogilvie, also named as defendants, to defraud the government out of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and with accepting bribes from the co-defendants to ship vis the Pan-American Fast Freight Company the Pan-American Fast Freight Company, in which they are interested. It is alleged that Col. Kimball, who has charge of the forwarding of all government supplies to Cuba and the Philippines, has driven the Philippines Company out of business by unlawfully discriminating in favor of the rival company, going so far in some instances as to abstract from the files in his office bids of the plaintiff and awarding business to the defendant at higher rates.

Col. Kimball and the other defendants are also accused of making unlawfully in three months in 1899 profits of $130,000 out of the shipment of government supplies to Cuba via the Cuban and Pan-American Express Company, of which O'Brien is president and Ogilvie secretary. It is alleged that five times the rate charged by any other express company was paid to O'Brien and Ogilvie company was paid to O'Brien and Ogilvie on every shipment to Cuba. Counsel for Col. Kimball declare that the suit is merely a blackmailing scheme, in-tended to besmirch the character of his client, who has served more than forty years in an official capacity. 20 Years of Vile Catarrh. Chas. O. Brown, journalist, of Duluth, Minn., prites: "I have been a sufferer from Throat and
